Things about Lutherans

The first Lutheran pastor in North America landed outside of what is now Quebec in August 1619. His name was Rasmus Jensen, and he was from Denmark. He was part of a Danish expedition of 66 Lutherans under Captain Jens Munck who attempted to claim the land around Hudson Bay in the name of the Danish crown.

The group spent several months exploring the area before winter set in. They were not prepared for the harsh conditions. Pastor Jensen fell ill, but was able to deliver his final sermon on January 23rd. He died on February 20th. Captain Munck abandoned the quest and set sail for home in July of 1620, arriving in Norway with the only two surviving crew members in September.
